lost to time Mary would start to laugh every time she said that name, mignonette sauce.

ago John and Mary and Molly and I were in Brittany, which is famous for its oysters. We'd laughter. Sometimes a line would take on a life of its own through Mary's repetition. Years a therapist, teacher, supervisor, and mentor to so many and to so many of us here—and a

A jewel, kind, strong, authentic, humble and fierce position for Mary that enabled him to call on her when sensitive situations arose that

It is with heavy hearts that we are here to pay tribute to our dear friend and beloved and supervision in Washington for over forty years.

number of articles on group, and co-edited the book approach to the modality of Large Group. Additionally, she presented many memorable

There was nothing self-aggrandizing about Mary – it seemed that what group psychotherapy and beyond.

It seems like I've always been interested. I remember how hard it was for me to start

I am aware in myself of unsettling thoughts and feelings that come up

It seems like I've always been interested. I remember how hard it was for me to start in the newsletter. Please send feedback, ideas, and creative submissions for the Fall 2022

Get over, 'I Got It'

Wow!

Click here to apply for a scholarship!
collective commitment of our incredible Board members. There is a need for a DEI/JEDI/REDI position, but the role needs to be clearly defined by the Board.

After difficult consideration, I am resigning from the Board of MAGPS as the Chair of the White Affinity Group. I want someone to build some practice-based evidence on this topic! I am curious and open. MAGPS is changing generationally. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

As someone who spends a great deal of time in my head, my 8-year-old's words and the image of me being walked down the stairs on their arms enlivened by the warmth, humanness, and openness with which existing members welcomed me at the conference. There is still so much work to be done. It was a privilege to be a part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

Dr. Shemika Brooks and Dr. Jackie Darby have prepared a challenging program to help us discuss this. So Jackie and I think this will be a great topic to discuss at a conference. Passing of the Torch: Viewing Intergenerational Dynamics in Group, with Karen Eberwein. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

After difficult consideration, I am resigning from the Board of MAGPS as the Chair of the White Affinity Group. I want someone to build some practice-based evidence on this topic! I am curious and open. MAGPS is changing generationally. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

As someone who spends a great deal of time in my head, my 8-year-old's words and the image of me being walked down the stairs on their arms enlivened by the warmth, humanness, and openness with which existing members welcomed me at the conference. There is still so much work to be done. It was a privilege to be a part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

Dr. Shemika Brooks and Dr. Jackie Darby have prepared a challenging program to help us discuss this. So Jackie and I think this will be a great topic to discuss at a conference. Passing of the Torch: Viewing Intergenerational Dynamics in Group, with Karen Eberwein. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

After difficult consideration, I am resigning from the Board of MAGPS as the Chair of the White Affinity Group. I want someone to build some practice-based evidence on this topic! I am curious and open. MAGPS is changing generationally. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

As someone who spends a great deal of time in my head, my 8-year-old's words and the image of me being walked down the stairs on their arms enlivened by the warmth, humanness, and openness with which existing members welcomed me at the conference. There is still so much work to be done. It was a privilege to be a part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.

Dr. Shemika Brooks and Dr. Jackie Darby have prepared a challenging program to help us discuss this. So Jackie and I think this will be a great topic to discuss at a conference. Passing of the Torch: Viewing Intergenerational Dynamics in Group, with Karen Eberwein. Our Board is changing. Thinking about our work and how we engage with our community is part of this. Not everyone has had the same access to psychology based on their race, gender, sex, ability, and age. We aren't talking about it. Race, gender, sex, ability, those are all there. But not age. I think that's the part I am most excited about.