Every participant was assigned a co-leader, and each co-leadership team took some time to feedback on the strengths and challenges of each person’s leadership. The co-leadership teams also offered a pilot program that encouraged process support, put together a committee (Victoria Lee, Halliwell, (1998).), and helped to assemble a team that includes: Nina Brown, Scott Conkright, P SyD. Their application was approved by the board of directors to address the varied and diverse needs of the community. Directors now work with a team that includes: Venus Masselam, who requested to have friends. Members.

Refuge for hiking, kayaking, and even birding. The program has also been designed to support the volunteers who provide care and support to the clients. It is hoped that this program will help to reduce the barriers that prevent people from accessing care and support services. The program also offers a range of workshops and training sessions to help people build the skills they need to provide effective care and support. Participants have also been encouraged to share their experiences and insights, in order to help others to understand the challenges they face and the support they need.

Supervision Group Opportunity
with Barry Wepman, PhD, CGP, LF AGPA

I have openings in a long-running, process-oriented supervision group. The focus of the group is the inner experience of therapists, as stimulated by their work with particular patients.

The group centers around countertransference issues to help members understand and resolve clinical impasses, and to deepen the therapeutic experience. It is made up of moderately to very experienced therapists who are committed to their own professional and personal growth using psychodynamic reflection and group process.

The group meets weekly in my office in Georgetown.

If you are interested and wonder if this group may be right for you, please contact me at (202) 337-0705 or bjwep@aol.com.
